VIRTUES OF HYLAN

Steady Increase of Unemployment Among 'White Collar' Element Noted, but Factory and Mill Workers Are Busy.

McClellan Also Pictures Defeat of Mayor as a National Calamity.

2,500 ATTEND RALLY

They Hear That the City Now Enjoys Its Best Administration.

TIGER'S 'CIVIC EFFORTS'

Are Splendid, Enduring and Useful, Asserts the Representative.

The Hyman administration was extolled as the greatest this city ever has had and the culmination of years of local Democratic effort by Former Mayor George B. McClellan and Representative W. Bourke Cockran at a Democratic rally last night in the Manhattan Opera House. It was the first appearance in the lists for Mr. Hyman of both Mr. McClellan and Mr. Cockran and the meeting itself, while there were only 2,500 persons present, was the largest political gathering held on a Sunday night in many years.

Messrs. McClellan and Cockran vied with each other in the use of adjectives to describe the finer qualities of the present city government and to explain why the defeat of Mr. Hyman would be little short of a national calamity. Mr. McClellan confined his remarks to fifteen minutes, but it took Mr. Cockran more than an hour and a half to give his reasons for the reelection of the entire Democratic ticket. Mr. McClellan recently returned to the Tammany fold and Mr. Cockran's political career has been marked by a series of ins and outs in different political parties.

Mr. McClellan acted as chairman of the meeting, which he called "an old fashioned Democratic ratification meeting." He said the issues of the campaign were clear cut, "despite the hypocrisy of those opposing the Democratic ticket." He outlined the main issue as follows:

"This is the great stronghold of democracy, the greatest stronghold of popular government in the world, be turned over, bound hand and foot, to the party of graft and public plunder. The party which has failed utterly in the Government at Washington, whose only achievement there has been the enactment of a tariff which has utterly ruined our foreign commerce."

Mr. McClellan said the coalitionists by the ticket they nominated conceded that they cannot be expected to govern the city any more than they can divorce it from government in the State or nation.

Raps Republican Hack.

"They have nominated the sorriest aggregation of Republican party hacks," he continued, "which the people of New York have ever been asked to vote for, plus one young hitherto untried renegade Democratic politician having no government experience, and who is about to give it a sort of vague Democratic flavor."

He said Mr. Hyman, normally a Democratic ally, "has no excuse for turning out a Democratic administration except upon the ground of malfeasance or misfeasance." Mr. McClellan charged that the Republican leaders and the press conducted a consistent campaign of vilification against Democratic officials which "has resulted in one of the vilest, most unseemable campaigns of filth that this city has ever known."

"The result," he continued, "is that there is malfeasance in office. We cannot prove it, but we will send down to New York an investigating committee that will prove it. They will find that the committee at a total cost to the taxpayers of $75,000, and have proved absolutely nothing."

Mr. McClellan said he probably qualified as an expert on the Mayor because of his term in office. "I should like to see in all sincerity," he added, "to congratulate the people of New York for having had four years of so good an administration as the city has ever had under the leadership of John F. Hyman."

Mr. Cockran began by saying Hyman has given the city the best government on the face of the earth. This, he said, was no exaggeration; it was a pure statement of fact. The Mayor's administration, he added, was the result of long years of Democratic administration.

Impatient With Police.

Mr. Cockran said the Fire Department and Police Department under Hyman have been maintained at the highest standard of efficiency in the history of the city. He said that persons "sometimes become impatient with the police, but it is merely a lovers' quarrel." The speaker referred to court records to show there had been a great decrease in the amount of commercialized vice. "Hyman's success in purifying the morals of the city," he added, "is not greater than the achievement in preserving its health."

Mr. Cockran in discussing the Health Department stressed part of the speech of Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, who had preceded him, in which the Commissioner said the death rate for this year would be 11 per thousand, the smallest in the history of the city.

Mr. Cockran was interrupted when half way through his speech by a man in the gallery, who shouted: "How about Jerome?"

"I never deal with the past," the Representative replied, "especially when it is the remote past. The past belongs to the history. Politics is the events of the day. And what can be said to the Supreme Court Justice who throws aside the ermine and goes onto the platform to act as a clown—to make a pure play of words?"

Mr. Cockran gave the following description of Tammany Hall:

"Whoever has visited London must have observed on the front of St. Paul's the inscription of tribute to the architect, which said: 'Altera aetate, si tu vis uideri, uidebis tuum monumentum look you.' We can with equal eye, with

'A JOB FOR EVERY WOMAN'

IS AM IN NEW CAMPAIGN

Steady Increase of Unemployment Among 'White Collar' Element Noted, but Factory and Mill Workers Are Busy.

A procession of unemployed women, increasingly large, at the three employment bureaus of the Young Women's Christian Association, led to the announcement by the organization yesterday that on Thursday a campaign will be started to find "a job for every girl in New York out of work."

The records of the employment bureaus it was computed that there are 10 per cent. more women now unemployed than there were a year ago. The records of the Central branch Y. W. C. A. showed last month that 3,000 girls made application for work.

Most of the young women applying at the bureaus, it was announced, are of the "white collar woman" type, or those who received college or special training for a better class of positions. Their sisters of the factory and mill have plenty to do, these industries having been hit by more encouraging conditions, and few of them are out of work.

Mrs. William Fellows Morgan, president of the metropolitan board of the Y, is taking an active part in directing the campaign. Mr. Albert Hutchinson, 155 West Fifty-ninth street, heads a committee which is conducting a survey of business houses employing large numbers of women. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday registrations of all young women facing the prospect of winter and no job will be received at one of the three bureaus. These are at 610 Lexington avenue, 74 West 124th street and the Colored Women's branch, 179 West 127th street.

The percentage of unemployment was much higher, it was said, except that the factory and industrial workers have not been hit by the depression. The chief element in the situation is reductions made in personnel by better paid positions have been able to save money, but they could not withstand a long workless period.

"The condition is serious," said Miss Dorothy P. Wells, director of the employment department at the Central branch. "There has been a great increase in our social service cases. Last winter and spring we were surprised that there were not more calls from girls in distress from poverty. They must have had some resources to carry them over the crisis. Now, however, the unemployment is beginning to feel seriously. Unless a change in conditions there will be many cases of actual distress this winter."

CHAMPAGNE TO STAY HIGH AND SCARCE GIRL DID NOT TRIM HAIR, SAYS FATHER

Treasury Ruling as to Prescriptions Will Not Affect Wine.

It has been many days since some folk who used to run off the reservation occasionally to gratify a champagne appetite with a beer income have even seen any of the effervescent ferment. The price went cloudward with prohibition, to $100 a case, more or less. With the promulgation of the new prescription rules for physicians by the Secretary of the Treasury a good deal of speculation was aroused as to what effect the new move would have upon the importation, accessibility and price of champagne. Sorrowful as the news may be, the consensus is that it will have mighty little.

Physicians accustomed to prescribe it, pharmacists making a practice of having it on hand, wine merchants who still deal in it lawfully and bootleggers persons who traffic in it surreptitiously agree that little more, if anything, is to be expected under the new ruling than previously. Two wine merchants who continue to import liberally under permit, supplying champagne for medicinal and other authorized purposes, gave this information:

There is a large stock of champagne on hand in this country in the warehouses, more than most people are aware of. Importation is now going on, but at a reduced rate, because of increased restrictions made by the prohibition act. The price of champagne is going to stay fairly high. The price seems to be slowly increasing for the reason that it is very difficult to get out of the warehouses any sizable quantity of the supply here.

A restaurant proprietor formerly well known for the excellence of the champagne and other wines to be obtained in his establishment, said:

"The new rulings make no difference as regards champagne. It is hard to get hold of, even though there are many thousands of cases of very good vintages on this side of the water. With in a year or so the price has risen from about $85 a case to $125 for bona fide wine. It has gone so high that people simply pass it up even when they are offered chances to get it."

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 30.—Luciano Imondi, 30, a night worker in a railroad roundhouse here, returned home unexpectedly early this morning and shot and killed his wife, Alvina Imondi, and Antonio Calandona, a visitor. Then he ran out of the house and hunted for a policeman.

"I killed my wife," he informed Patrolman James Keegan, who held him in charge of double murder. Imondi expressed satisfaction with his act. Two children, aged 10 and 7, have been sent to an institution.

greater confidence, to whomsoever may ask what is Tammany, answer, "Look about you."

"Whatever you behold that is enduring, splendid, useful, important to the development of human well being, the spread of knowledge, encouragement in preserving its healthy life, there you will see the monuments of Tammany operation—there you behold the fruits of Tammany's civic efforts."

Dr. Copeland said among other things that the schools of this city are miles ahead of the homes of some of the children who attend them. "The schools built by this administration," he added, "are the finest schoolhouses ever constructed."

Other speakers at the meeting were Joseph H. Banton, candidate for District Attorney; Miss Annie Mathews, nominee for registrar; and J. J. Dunham, candidate for county clerk.

3 SOUGHT IN VICINITY

Girls Find Body Behind Wall of Little Graveyard Near New Brunswick.

A well dressed man was tured behind the wall of a small Russian cemetery at New Brunswick, N. J., early last night and shot dead as he apparently related an attempt to search him. Detectives found only one clue to the identity of the man, a scrap of newspaper on which had been written a name and an address believed to be near Baltimore.

The newspaper scrap evidently served once as a wrapper for a bundle that went through the mails. From it the detectives deduced the fact that the man's name possibly was Ponponne and that he lived in a branch of the C. & A. Railroad. One line of the address read "Ponponne, Y. M. C. A."

Three men were seen in the neighborhood of the cemetery just before the body was discovered. They had disappeared an hour later and the police are searching for them.

Three girls walking along the highway near the cemetery about 5:30 o'clock last night were startled by a shot fired close by. They continued on, giving no attention to the sounds, but later when they climbed the cemetery wall to take a short cut home they found the body. There were three wounds on the head and two near the mouth.

Any one of the wounds would have proved fatal. The bullets lodged in the brain, a medical examination proved.

One theory entertained tentatively is that the man carried either a large sum of money or papers of great value. The hidden pocket, together with a large safety pin used to fasten it, indicated that he was fearful of losing whatever he carried there. It is believed that the three men seen near the cemetery knew the man and followed him to the lonely spot. The police believe each of the three straggle men fired one shot.

The body was removed to New Brunswick Police Headquarters and searched. There were found a pair of gold rimmed eyeglasses in a case which bore the name "Dr. J. W. Dandaberg, 17 West Saratoga street, Baltimore," a silver pencil and $1.09 in change. The man's velvet collar bore the manufacturer's mark of the Golden Hat Company, Third avenue and 115th street, and the blue serge suit he wore carried the tag of the May Clothing Company of this city.

The police of Baltimore and this city were notified of the murder and asked to aid in the search for the man's relatives or friends.

BANDITS WITH GUN ROB BROADWAY RESTAURANT

Boys Escape With $400 in Cash in Automobile.

Two youths about 18 years old walked into the restaurant of John Gyparis, 3572 Broadway, yesterday morning. One with a revolver ordered three customers, a waiter and Gyparis to "stay where you are."

No one moved after facing about and observing the revolver, and the second youth slipped behind the counter, rang up the bill and fled. The man's velvet collar bore the manufacturer's mark of the Golden Hat Company, Third avenue and 115th street, and the blue serge suit he wore carried the tag of the May Clothing Company of this city.

The police of Baltimore and this city were notified of the murder and asked to aid in the search for the man's relatives or friends.

M. D. LOSEY CERTAIN SON WAS MURDERED

Police Stick to Theory of Suicide or Accident.

BUFFALO, Oct. 30.—M. D. Losey, Superintendent of Police at Northport, L. I., returns home to-day with the body of his son Kenneth, found in the Niagara River last Thursday night.

Before leaving, Mr. Losey expressed the conviction that his son was murdered and that he had been lured here to his death by "some powerful influence."

He had no theory as to what the influence might be, but he said that although the County Medical Examiner has officially pronounced the case one of murder and declared that Losey was dead before the body entered the water, the police have not abandoned their theory that he met death by accident or suicide.

FIGHT OVER CAILLAUX AND MALVY IS BITTER

Turmoil of Dreyfus Case Perhaps May Be Repeated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Tribune, Paris, Oct. 30.

The reorganization of the radical groups in the French Chamber of Deputies is a single part of the Left may develop another case in some respects similar to the Dreyfus affair, which will cause turmoil in French politics for a long period, perhaps leading to a revision of the high court's decisions in the cases of ex-Minister of Interior Malvy and ex-Premier Caillaux. "a both the defendants were found guilty of 'dealings with the enemy'."

The radical Socialist congress in Lyon has proclaimed its intention to appeal for the country's support in obtaining the rehabilitation of these two one-time French political leaders. The movement is arousing opposition by other political parties, and ex-Premier Briand is drawing strong support from the new grouping the Government's attitude will be subject to intense scrutiny as soon as the Premier returns from Washington.

MAINE MAYOR FINDS HE BOUGHT STOLEN CAR

WESTBROOK, Me., Oct. 30.—Mayor John Lawrence of this city and ten other residents have discovered that they unwittingly bought automobiles alleged to have been stolen. Recently a young man visited the city and offered cars at bargain prices. He said he had been sold them in Westbrook. The youth is now under arrest in New Jersey, charged with the theft of automobiles.

The fact that the cars sold in Westbrook had been stolen has been established and the purchasers have been compelled to give them up.

The Mayor and other buyers in this city have retained counsel to make a legal contest to enable them to keep their automobiles.

EFFORTS TO STOP MILK STRIKE GO ON

Union Officials and Conference Board Deadlocked With Mediators.

15 HOURS IN SESSION

Settlement Sought Before Mass Meeting of Drivers This Afternoon.

No settlement leading to averting the threatened strike of the 11,000 men in the milk industry had been reached at the meeting of the New York Milk Conference Board and the representatives of the union, which had been in session for almost fifteen hours and so far as could be learned at the Maritime, where it was in progress, the union officials and the members of the conference board were at a deadlock with the Federal mediators, Charles Bendheim and Homer J. Brown.

The union officials, who were in the United States Department of Labor, unable to move them.

At 6 o'clock in the evening, it became known, two of the thirty-six articles in a new proposed agreement had been agreed upon. I. Elkin Nathans, secretary of the conference board, said the conference would be continued until the morning, but the union officials, at which the leaders will put the question of a strike to the men, is scheduled for this afternoon at Madison Square Garden, where it was hoped the danger of a walkout might be avoided.

Union officials at the Maritime last night refused to say how they will advise the drivers to vote at the mass meeting, which will be held at 8 o'clock go half way and that if an agreement could be reached at the conference there would be no trouble.

Twenty of them were from the employers while the remainder represented the unions.

The deadlock existing between the drivers and employers has arisen as a result of the counter demands of the two sides—that of the men for a $2 weekly pay increase and that of the employers for a 10 per cent. cut in wages of inside workers and a 15 per cent. cut for outside workers or delivery men. The second offer was to hold the wages of inside men at the present level and guarantee a minimum wage with commissions to the delivery men.

DEFENCE OF 2 ITALIANS ATTACKS NEWSPAPERS

Public Asked to Judge Sacco and Vanzetti Fairly.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—A statement asking the public to judge the guilt or innocence of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti "on the basis of evidence introduced in the court room and not on the basis of newspaper fabrications about the two men and their friends" was issued by the Sacco-Vanzetti defence committee to-day.

The committee, formed after the arrest of the two Italians on the murder charge of which they were later convicted, is now trying to obtain a new trial for them.

"In view of the persistence with which the press of the country has spread fantastic stories without the slightest foundation in fact," the statement said, "the committee feels it is its duty to defend the two men and their friends."

The committee, formed after the arrest of the two Italians on the murder charge of which they were later convicted, is now trying to obtain a new trial for them.

MAYN BROWN UNDERGRADS

WALK 120 MILES TO GAME

Some Still Plodding Back to Providence After Seeking Bulldog Chew Up Bear at New Haven—Lucky Trudgers Get Lifts From Motorists.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 30.—Of the more than 200 Brown undergrads who went to New Haven yesterday to see the bulldog chase the bear all over the gridiron, scores of whom walked, barely half had returned to the campus here to-night. The others presumably plodding homeward somewhere on the 120 miles of road between this city and New Haven.

Not all of those who rode to the game made the homeward journey in the same way. A few, according to the students, had the price of a return ticket. Many of those who started yesterday, saw the game and are on their way back, had less than a dollar to their names.

In previous years at Brown there have been instances of students who, determined to see the big game, have managed to get to New Haven by walking part way, by jumping freight trains, or by some other means, but never before had there been so large a number as started on their way back to-day.

One of the first to complete the trip and probably one of the luckiest was a freshman named Swaney, who left here Friday noon with another freshman.

Swaney had forty cents and his companion seventy. The two got three lifts by automobilists on the way down and covered virtually the entire distance in motor cars. When car dropped them they plodded until another that looked promising came along. Arrived in New Haven they hunted up their fraternity house and got meals and a place to sleep.

On Saturday before the game they spotted a Rhode Island car alongside the curb in New Haven and promptly hailed the operator. To their joy they had found a football fan who had gone to the game and was on his way back. They saw the game and replenished the inner man they met the Rhode Islander and returned here in luxury. Swaney had fifteen cents left of his original forty and his companion had spent thirty-five cents. Both had a whole of a time, they said. They got back on the campus at 2 o'clock this morning.

During the day they drifted in other ways who had caught rides part way back, and they were unanimous in declaring that they had enjoyed the trip far more than if they had gone to the game in a Pullman.

475 OUT ALL NIGHT ON STRANDED FERRY

Fog Covering Bay Causes the Gaynor to Break Propeller and Ground in Mud.

In one of the densest fogs that ever has blanketed the harbor the municipal ferryboat Mayor Gaynor, bound from Whitehall street to St. George, Staten Island, was marooned in the bay with 475 passengers on Sunday night and yesterday morning.

The Gaynor, carrying theatregoers home to Richmond, left Manhattan at 11 o'clock Sunday night, threading her way slowly and carefully down the bay, whistling frequently and dimly. After dodging a tow of car floats, which forced her off her course, the boat bumped into a large anchored near Robb's Reef. The impact threw several passengers off their feet, frightened many others and inspired a few to get out life preservers, but there was no harm.

The Gaynor fouled the anchor cable of the large and got a section of it wound around her propeller. This stalled her engines and she drifted onto the mud near Robb's Reef. The whole of the Gaynor began roaring hoarsely for help—the only wireless she had.

It was not until nearly six hours later that another ferryboat, the Manhattan, tracing the whistling which was hard to locate in the fog, spoke to the Gaynor, found out what had happened and notified W. Mills, Deputy Commissioner of Plant and Structures, who called the police boat Hyman.

Meanwhile passengers had been soothed by an orchestra which played all the tunes they knew many times over. Capt. William Ryan kept the crowd assured that the boat was shipshape and that help was near.

When the Gaynor arrived and got out a line the Gaynor would not budge. By the Hyman's wireless the United States Lighthouse Department at Tompkinsville was called and sent out its tender Tully. At 5:30 A. M. the two little ships hauled the Gaynor from the mud, to the cheers of passengers, and towed her to St. George.

The Gaynor was put in dry dock at Mariners Harbor for repairs and will resume her trips to-morrow. Mills will try to find out whether the barge that caused most of the trouble was anchored in the mud.

The only big transatlantic steamship held outside Sandy Hook by the fog was the New York, formerly of the American Line, owned by the Polish Navigation Company. She was only slightly delayed, entering in the afternoon with the Polish delegation to the armament conference.

More than a score of persons were hurt early yesterday morning in a collision between a three car West End line train and an eight car empty train. The crash occurred on the elevated structure of the subway, was due to the fog.

Sixty-two men from Valley Island and Norwegian hospitals gave first aid to twenty-one persons. Many others were bruised.

The passenger train was just pulling out of the station when the train following hit it. None of the cars left the rails.

TREASURER ACCUSED AFTER BANK FAILURE

Embezzlement of $25,000 Is Charged in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Joseph F. Monti, 29, treasurer of the Cleveland-Italian Savings Bank Company, was arrested to-night on a warrant based on affidavits sworn to by State Bank Examiner Frank A. Hunter, charging embezzlement of $25,000 of the bank's funds.

The bank closed its doors September 15. It was capitalized at $50,000, had a surplus of $5,000, deposits of $120,000 and was custodian for an additional $50,000 in money orders in transit. A former official of the institution decided to-night the bank would pay its depositors dollar for dollar.

DEATH ENDS WIFE'S SUIT AGAINST HENNEN

Divorce Action Was to Have Been Tried in December.

The divorce action brought by Mrs. Ida Hennen against Dr. William D. Hennen of 123 West Seventy-fifth street, a widely known surgeon, has been ended by the death of Mrs. Hennen at the home of her sister in Havana. Herman Heydt of 301 West Ninety-first street, attorney for Mrs. Hennen, said last night that he received a cablegram from Havana notifying him of Mrs. Hennen's death.

Mr. Heydt said that Dr. Hennen and his wife separated last July, and that soon afterward Mrs. Hennen brought her divorce suit, the papers being filed at that time. Trial of the case was not expected until late in December or during the first part of next year. Mrs. Hennen's health had been poor for some time, and soon after the filing of the divorce action she went to Havana on the advice of Mr. Heydt, and was to have remained there until the suit came to trial.

Dr. Hennen refused to comment on the case last night.

WILSON, ILL, DROPS

DAY'S ENGAGEMENTS

Remains in Bed to Insure Recovery From Attack of Indigestion.

FRIENDS ARE REASSURED

Reports That Condition of Former President Is Serious Are Denied.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Washington, D. C., Oct. 30.

On advice of his physician Woodrow Wilson cancelled all Sunday engagements and remained in bed to insure complete recovery from the attack of indigestion with which he has been suffering for the last week.

Rear Admiral Carl T. Grayson, who is Mr. Wilson's physician, advised the former President to take this course so there might be no question about his recovery. Dr. Grayson said his patient had almost entirely recovered from the attack of indigestion and that the case was in no way alarming.

Despite this reassurance, reports were current in Washington to-night that Mr. Wilson was gravely ill. There were continuous calls to the newspaper offices and many inquiries among Mr. Wilson's friends.

Dr. Grayson and others in a position to know the details of the case did their best to put an end to the alarming reports. They explained that an attack of indigestion is nothing unusual for Mr. Wilson. He has been suffering with stomach trouble for years, although during the last few years the attacks have been less frequent, due to the exceptional facilities provided for a President, that of having a personal physician to study his case.

It is not unusual for Mr. Wilson to have stomach trouble for years, although during the last few years the attacks have been less frequent, due to the exceptional facilities provided for a President, that of having a personal physician to study his case.

There is, of course, nothing in the present condition which would indicate the immediate danger of such a thing. But it is an explanation of the extraordinary precautions that are advised by Dr. Grayson.

ONE HELD IN WRECK OF TRAIN; THREE FREED

Efforts Made to Connect Four Jobs in Michigan.

LAKEVIEW, Mich., Oct. 30.—Railroad and county authorities to-day continued their efforts to connect the wrecking of a Grand Trunk passenger train near here, Friday night, with similar train wrecks at Battle Creek, Pontiac and Port Huron recently.

Henry Gates of Huntington, Ky., still was detained for questioning. An effort is being made to identify him as a man seen loitering near the scene of the wreck just before a rail was removed, derailing the train and injuring three persons
